Free Workshop: How is Your Credit Score?

Wyoming – So...how's your credit? If you've been wondering that very question, the Small Business Administration, Natrona County Public Library and the Wyoming Small Business Development Center have a great learning opportunity coming up for you. As you may know, your credit score can impact both your personal and business life.

Stacey Tichy from the Consumer Credit Counseling Service will help you understand how to access your credit reports, what credit scores mean and how to improve your score. This workshop is helpful to both individuals and those continuing in or starting their own business and or buying a home. Other topics will include how to use credit wisely, tactics for cleaning up your credit reports and information about predatory lending.

This free workshop will be held in Natrona County Public Library's Crawford room on Wednesday, January 23, at 6:30 p.m. Call 577-READ ext 2 for details on upcoming finance and business-related workshops.
